Randy Silver and the Story of Pocket Watches

Randy Silver is a third generation professional photographer, following in the footsteps of his grandfather and mother.

He started in photography at age 9 in his mother's darkroom, followed with involvement in photography in high school, the Navy and throughout college and graduate school.

He photographed his first wedding over 30 years ago and currently photographs 15 weddings each year.

In 1996 he was selected as the first Certified Photographic Consultant of the Year by the Photo Marketing Association.

In 1999 Randy received his Photographic Craftsman Degree from Professional Photographers of America.

In recent years Randy's award-winning black and white fine art infrared photography has been exhibited at Randy has earned the "Certified Photographic Consultant of the Year" award from Photographic Marketing International.

At another service club, Randy recently brought his antique pocket watch collection and spoke of the history and various styles of watches through the years.

Some rare ones on the market go for five digit dollar numbers.

One in his collection was a ladies style and several were described as colorful.

Concerning this week's speaker

Randy Silver is our speaker this week and his area of expertise is pocket watches:

He has written to say:

If any of your members bring old pocket watches to the meeting I can tell them about the company that made it and the year it was manufactured.

Sounds like fun!--Ed.

Edelweiss

Music by Richard Rodgers and Lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein II for the Sound of Music.

Edelweiss, Edelweiss,

Every morning you greet me,

Small and White,

Clean and bright

You look happy to meet me..

Blossom of snow may you

bloom and grow,

Bloom and grow forever

Edelweiss Edelweiss

Bless my home land forever.

Edelweiss was the final song that the great duo wrote together — Hammerstein would die nine months after the premiere of the musical-Ed.
